

How well are young people being prepared for the future of work?

In a couple of words, what needs to be done to better support young people?

If we manage to accomplish this change, how positive would you feel about young people's employability?

